‘South Asian’ is a broad term loosely referring to people who migrated, or with ancestry, from countries in the region of Southern Asia such as Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Nepal, Pakistan and Sri Lanka. We live in a world where identity is complex so we ask individuals to self-identify as South Asian.

We encourage and welcome applications representing the vast diversity in our collective communities through language, immigration status, HIV status, gender identity, sexual orientation, diaspora, class, ability and lived experiences. We are committed to accommodating people with varying needs.
